

STRICKEN ILL WHILE AT CHARITY'S WORK.

Mrs. Rose Hawthorne Lathrop Lying on a Bed of Sickness.

Her Self-Chosen Home Is Amid the Wretched Poverty of the East Side.

There She Went to Live with the Poor and to Nurse Them for the Dread Disease of Cancer.

SHE IS SUFFERING WITH PNEUMONIA.

Hope Felt for Her Recovery—Is the Daughter of Nathaniel Hawthorne and the Wife of George Parsons Lathrop.

Mrs. Rose Hawthorne Lathrop has fallen a victim to her own duty. She has been stricken with pneumonia, and she is lying seriously ill in her tenement quarters at No. 1 Scammel street.

So patient and gentle a victim is she that even her fashionable friends upon her not known a word of her misfortune. Only the poor, among whom she elects to live, know and grieve over what has befallen the gracious woman who lives among them in order that she may bring comfort and sympathy to their lives.

In her East Side lodging, Mrs. Lathrop is being attended by an East Side doctor, and visited only by East Side friends—humble, grateful friends of her own making. And yet she has the best care that the most luxurious of individuals could wish for. A devoted woman—a woman whose life has been spent in the care of the sick, and who had joined Nathaniel Hawthorne's daughter in order to help her in her work—is lavishing upon the sick woman all the attention that skill and affection can dictate. And to one of Mrs. Lathrop's acute sensibilities, affection and comradeship count for more than mere luxury.

Strong Hopes of Her Recovery.

The physician who is attending Mrs. Lathrop was more hopeful of her recovery yesterday than he had been for many days. He believes that it is only a question of time and careful nursing now to restore her to her old vigor. What he most fears is that his distinguished patient may allow his enthusiasm for her self-chosen work to tempt her to a renewal of exertion before the period of convalescence is passed. That period has not yet begun, and it will be a long time before Mrs. Lathrop is able to leave her bed; but even at the height of her illness she was thinking and speaking constantly of her patients, and chafing at her enforced idleness rather than at her pain and weakness.

It has been an anxious time at No. 1 Scammel street. The tenants of the house and of the neighboring houses and of the neighboring streets have taken almost as deep an interest in the welfare of the sufferer as her own nurse. There is a little boy on the floor below who feels for her very keenly. He is a white-faced boy, who does not play with the other children round about, because there is something the matter with his knee, and he is a cripple. He listens about the stairs these days, listening wistfully for the door upstairs to open, and sometimes hobbling painfully upward, so that he can call the nurse and ask her whether "the lady" is better, and whether he can do anything for her. And when the boldest children of the neighborhood stray anywhere within the gates of No. 1 Scammel street in their games of tag or what not, this white-faced boy limps forth and with earnest gestures entreats them to go away, so that "the lady" may not be disturbed.

No One Allowed to See Her.

By the doctor's orders no one is allowed to see Mrs. Lathrop. Her East Side visitors must be content to hear the news of her condition from the nurse, outside the door of her tiny rooms. That door is distinguished from the other doors in the tenement by an iron knocker affixed to it in the English fashion. And the rooms within are distinguished from their neighbors only by their dazzling cleanliness, and the flowers and delicious odors with which they are adorned.

Mrs. Lathrop is the youngest daughter of Nathaniel Hawthorne and the wife of George Parsons Lathrop, the writer. A few years ago Mr. and Mrs. Lathrop created a sensation in society by renouncing the Unitarian faith of their forefathers and becoming Roman Catholics. Within the last few months Mrs. Lathrop gave rise to another ripple of polite agitation by taking a course of instruction as a nurse in the New York Cancer Hospital, and then establishing herself in the tenement quarter to nurse incurable sufferers who were too poor to receive proper attention.

She threw herself into this labor of love with so much energy that she has fallen ill, pneumonia, which was the precursor of her present attack of pneumonia.

BANKER HAMILTON IS DEAD.

Head of the Bowers Bank, Stricken with Heart Failure Last Month, Expires.

President Richard Hamilton, of the Bowers Bank, New York, died at his late residence, No. 506 Clinton avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday morning.

Mr. Hamilton returned to his home from the bank on October 16. A few minutes after reaching home he was stricken with heart failure, which finally caused his death. He was sixty years old, and had lived forty years in Brooklyn. He will be buried to-morrow.

HOUSE SINKS FIVE FEET.

Big Tenement Gives Way and Slips from Its Foundation in the Night and Several Families Flee in Terror.

A ramshackle three-story double frame tenement house at Nos. 34 and 36 Railroad avenue, Jersey City, occupied by several families and owned by Jacob Ringer, suddenly sank about five feet yesterday afternoon, and then slid into the rear yard about the same distance. The Board of Health and Building Department had condemned the building and had ordered the tenants out on Monday afternoon. During the night, however, they returned. The snapping of the timbers as the house sank and the scolding of tenants, who fled in terror, Nicola Calabro, his wife and four children, the youngest a baby girl four days old, occupied the top floor of No. 36. When the crash occurred Calabro rushed to the kitchen, where an overturned lamp had caused a slight fire, and extinguished the blaze. Then he returned to the room in which his wife and babies, all crying loudly, crouched on the floor. Picking them up, he tried to carry them down the swaying stairs to the street and safety.

The other tenants made their way out of the house without incident.

WIFE DEAD, CHILDREN GONE.

John Sherrer Trying to Reunite His Scattered Family.

John Sherrer, a mechanic who appeared to be bowed down by grief, brought the charities officials in Brooklyn to help him in his search for his children. Up to the morning of August 8 he lived at No. 832 Flushing avenue. He left the house to search for work. He had been idle for weeks and his family was destitute without means. Returning at night, he was amazed to learn that his wife and four children had gone away, taking the furniture. After a long search he found his wife in St. Catherine's Hospital, where she was under treatment for a chronic complaint. She died on September 21 without telling him where her children were. Sherrer secured work a few days ago. He is determined to find his children. He believes and he put them in an institution. The oldest is a girl of eighteen. The Brooklyn Charities Department will try to find the children, as Sherrer is anxious to provide for them now that he is able to do so.

BOTH THE CASTLES INDICTED.

True Bills Found Against the Californians for Shoplifting.

London, Nov. 3.—The Grand Jury of the Clerkenwell Sessions, after consideration of the cases of Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Castle, of San Francisco, yesterday returned a true bill against both prisoners on a charge of shoplifting.

Sir Frank Lockwood, one of the counsel for the defense, said this morning that at the meeting of the counsel, held at the chambers of Sir Edward Clarke yesterday, the lawyers arranged the details of a powerful defense.

MR. BUCKLEY'S DANGER.

Hard Pressed by Two Foes, He Turns to Munyon and Finds Relief—Mrs. Hatch Restored to Health.

Mr. John Buckley, 109 East Broadway, New York City, says: "Between catarrh and dyspepsia, I was in such a condition of danger and distress that I hardly knew which way to turn. Finally, I did turn to Munyon's specialist and got a complete and speedy cure. To-day I am a well man, thanks to Munyon."

Mrs. S. M. Hatch, 303 West Twentieth street, New York City, says: "A severe and persistent attack of grippe threatened to lay me up indefinitely. I lost my appetite and strength, my nervous system was awfully shaken. Munyon's doctors cured me after everything else failed, and I cannot say too much for them."
